The College of Social Sciences and Humanities is the new addition to Koç University although some of its departments have been at work since the foundation of the University. Our college serves our students by providing the best education from the most talented group of professors in social sciences and humanities. In a world where the human dimension and the human heritage is being rediscovered and appreciated, our colleagues present the most innovative approaches and contemporary perspectives.

The professors are not only excellent teachers and sources of vast knowledge but they are a group of young, energetic, and productive researchers of highest caliber. With an unmatched record of publications, research productivity, and research grants in the social sciences and humanities, our faculty members excel in collaborations with a diverse set of institutions. They have unearthed unknown pasts, analyzed and created inspiring texts, attacked the most critical social problems, and created programs for the development of the society. The excitement continues with growing intensity and new programs are added to our college.

You are invited to share the excitement and action in our college in order to discover the past and to build the future.
